RHINELANDER HIGH SCHOOL

Rhineland, Wisconsin

We spend our day here . . .

... among these students.

MR. W. F. KRUSCHKE
Superintendent

The Board of Education and Mr. W. F. Kruschke, superintendent of schools, not only have made available for us a wise education but have also made possible our extra-curricular activities. Even though we are passing through a period of temporary shortages, the elasticity of our program has been stretched to fully cover scholastic work, clubs, parties, tournaments, and festivals. It is these which give that extra spice to our school program and allow for more development and expression of our talents.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—Left to right: Mrs. Oscar Moen, Mrs. Mabel Carr, T. J. Patrinson, J. M. Caldwell, R. J. Mueller, W. F. Kruschke, E. Swensen, E. Draheim, D. Juday.

Through the combined efforts of Mr. Weinlick and the office force, our everyday school affairs have been run smoothly and efficiently. Mr. Weinlick's smiling face and cheerful "What can I do for you?" give the students a certain confidence in telling him their problems and in knowing they will be carefully considered. While Mrs. Hansen is busy recording and attending to affairs of our whole system, Miss Morgan is always ready and willing to do anything from selling you a pad of paper to interpreting the school calendar—past, present, and future. With a principal and an office force such as this, our school couldn't be anything but a happy place in which to work and play!

SEPTEMBER

Came September, came school. To the sophomores it was something new and exciting; to the juniors, the same old story; but to the seniors, their last year which they were determined to make the most of. During the summer many of the rooms were redecorated so when we came back this fall, we not only had new looking rooms and textbooks but two new teachers whom everyone immediately took a liking to. One of the office girls, Miss Feldman, acquired a husband and a new title, Mrs. Carlson; Mr. Koudelik joined the ranks by getting himself a wife. To get everyone acquainted, the annual senior party was held and maybe their unusual slogan "There'll be swing, song, and swaying with ping-pong and playing at the Senior Swing Session" did the trick, for it turned out to be a huge success. Football season began and we had a pretty good team. Most of the clubs organized and elected their officers. Class officers also were elected and members of the Hodag Staff were chosen. Two interesting lyceums were presented: one on Constitution Day when Mr. Froling explained the significance of our Constitution and introduced our representatives to Badger Boys' State and Badger Girls' State; and another given by a young man who once served as a page in the national legislature.

OCTOBER

Winding up the football season in which Rhinelander placed third in the conference, the parade led by the band headed the day's festivities for our Homecoming game with Stevens Point. In that colorful procession of floats Hold that Tiger, the Girls' Athletic Club entry, won first prize. Our first report cards were distributed with the new letter system of grading instead of the former numeral system and that, you remember, caused much comment. Well on the way into school activities, the first printed REPORTER was issued and the Hodag Staff began work on this 1942 edition of the HODAG. The four page REPORTER which in the past was mimeographed was printed and even included pictures of our new teachers. A sudden descent in attendance rate was started by the opening of partridge season. Whether the hunters were lucky in scoring or not, they still had to make up their time after classes.

NOVEMBER

After being feted by many banquets, the football players were also honored by one of the best school parties of the year, the Post-Football Party, sponsored by the Booster Club. Following this the junior class play cast was chosen for their three-act comedy "Good Night, Ladies," which, through the antics of Jim Mlady and Jack Christianson as two old ladies, disguised as chaperons of a girls' school, provoked many laughs. On Armistice Day we assembled to face the east at 11 o'clock in honor of our war dead. Usually noisy when packed with 500 energetic students, the room was so quiet you could have heard a pin drop. "Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow . . ." What could be so exciting tomorrow wondered the juniors and the sophomores but the seniors knew that it was one of those memorizing assignments. Most of those, for whom memorizing was a tedious task, hadn't gotten past the first line of tomorrows. With the coming of the second six weeks' grades, came a decided drop in standings. It seems studying has a lull in the mid-semester period. West met East in the lyceum number of Chinese Philip Yung Lee and his young wife, a graduate nurse of China. By telling of Chinese customs and music, Philip Yung Lee and his wife related how China has been meeting the West for the past thirty years and expressed gratitude for American interest in their country.

DECEMBER

December proved to be one of the busiest months of the school year. Our basketball triumph over Wausau, one of our strongest opponents, seemed to put everyone in the best of spirits. The band presented its first concert which was very successful, and not to be out-done, the juniors presented their annual class play "Good Night, Ladies," which had a laugh in every line. December seemed the month of successes, for our debate squad won six out of six debates at the Wisconsin Rapids tournament.

The nearer we came to Christmas, the stronger became the Christmas spirit. Every club had some sort of party and many girls feared for their waistlines because of the generous lunches each club gave, but they followed the motto "Christmas comes but once a year so why not make the most of it?". Along with the parties, Miss Olgard and her music classes, with the aid of Miss Young, presented a beautiful Christmas Candlelight Service. Everyone looked forward to vacation and to start it off right, the last day of school the Dramatic Club presented a Christmas play and a very nice program. Since they would come back to a new year and final examinations, all the students, from reports, made the most of vacation.

JANUARY

Another new year began and school started again. The first week was one of the coldest anyone could ever remember. Casting all feminine caution to the winds, the girls wore ski pants under coats and some even became brave enough to wear slacks in school. At least 150 students and teachers carried their lunches and there was a general dash, at noon, to restaurants and drug stores. With the new year Mr. Kruschke obtained a new secretary, Mrs. Margaret Hansen. His former secretary, after eleven years of service, resigned to become a housewife.

During the second week examinations were given and there was a general atmosphere of suspense, fear, and finally relief when they were finished. Examinations were followed by the all-school party sponsored by the seniors, whose slogan was "Be a sport and support the Senior Sports Spree." Suitable decorations helped to carry out their wintry scheme.

Miss Catlin began declamatory work for the Declamatory Contest in March. She reported that she had a lot of promising prospects so we hope we'll keep up our good reputation. Along with the declaration of war the Red Cross put in a plea for aid so a certain day was set aside for pupils to make their contributions. The Home Economics classes began knitting and it was suggested that they might help the Red Cross by knitting for the soldiers.

FEBRUARY

February came and with it—Lent and no school parties. The "suffering" students having given up everything from candy to gum (although the teachers could still spot some gum chewers) were in the dulllest season of the year. Club candy sales also fell with the "sacrificers." Five basketball games broke the monotony of the schedule and the only assembly was one given by our debaters who exhibited their talents in a debate before the assembly on February 9. February 14 was St. Valentine's Day and whether hearts were given out or not, the spirit prevailed. Declam eliminations announced the contestants for the tournament held here, from which were chosen winners to go to the district contest at Stevens Point. After all the cold weather in January the ground-hog came out the second of February to test his shadow. The winners of the sixteen intramural teams played off for the championship and the top scorer was honored. Graduation seemed closer than ever to the seniors, for the first six weeks had started the second semester and the Announcement Committee was chosen to select the senior graduation announcements for 1942.

MARCH

March blew in with a wind-up of basketball tournaments. Our regional tournament, which was played here this year, lasted four days with many high schools competing for the regional championship. Following this the top winners went to the state tournament at Madison to try their luck. After a period of concentrated preparation, three forensic contests, declam, oratory, and extemporaneous reading and speaking were held and winners were announced. Russ Hoogerhyde, the greatest archer in America, exhibited his skills in archery and gave the historic and dramatic "Romance of Archery." For many this was the second time he had appeared before them in a school assembly. Six times national champion, he shot arrows over our heads in long, upside down, and backhand shots, which was exciting to the sophomores but was still thrilling even to those who had seen him before. This year the Music Festival was divided up with the soloists competing at Antigo this month and the groups, in May. The soloists didn't know whether they would receive medals or not (on account of the metal shortage) but the spirit of the soloists was still present.

APRIL

With the hint of spring in the air April brought that little germ, spring fever, which made us restless and dreamy. April 1, or April Fools' Day, passed with its little tricks played on both teachers and students. Although some of us wouldn't admit it, we did get Easter baskets filled with chocolate eggs and rabbits or boxes of candy. A school for drama with Edward Rees and Julie Gregory presented a skit as it would be broadcast over a radio showing a fascinating and authentic demonstration of the use of sound effects. The sophomores, after attending and dancing at all the other school parties of the year, designed and planned their party, the last one (not counting the Prom) of the year. Miss Young's play cast was chosen and play practice began for the senior play to be presented in May. Rehearsals were also started in orchestra and music groups who were to perform at Commencement events. In preparation for the festival in May, the band, orchestra, and vocalists practiced steadily with even extra rehearsals. The band presented the first public audition of festival contest pieces at their last concert of the year.

MAY

The last month finally arrived. It no sooner came than the band, orchestra, and vocal classes packed their equipment and set off for the long awaited Music Festival at Antigo. A good time was had by all, not only because of the many high honors won, but because of the renewing of old acquaintances and making of new friends. Another long awaited event came at last, the Prom. Those much talked about "formals" and daring "hair-dos" were at last displayed, and a pretty sight it was. No matter how nice other parties were, there were none that could compete with the Prom and its festive atmosphere. The rest of the month was dedicated to numerous senior activities. The juniors were just beginning to realize the place they would hold and the seniors, the one they were to lose. The senior class play, "Lease on Liberty", was a success.

Then came the Senior Banquet and on the next day the Class Day Exercises. Mingled in with the bits of nonsense and serious parts of the program was an air of sadness. As a climax to this day the long awaited HODAG was issued. It was accompanied with the eager turning of pages, the usual squeals of delight or surprise, and the mad scramble to get all the names possible signed in each book. Then came Baccalaureate and Commencement. The former seniors set their shoulders to face a new life and the other classes put away all thoughts of school until the next school term would begin.

The 1941 football season was a success with Rhineland placing third in the Wisconsin Valley Conference. Only Wausau and Antigo finished ahead of the Hodags. Two Hodags, Julius Petta, right end, and Ken Laddusire, left guard, were selected on the all-conference first team. Joe Champeau and Pat Bowyer made the second team and Glenn Carroll was rated honorable mention.

With Champeau and Cebula co-starring in a running attack, Rhineland won its first game, from Merrill, by a score of 18-6. This game was featured by a 78-yard run from scrimmage by Joe Champeau over the Bluejays' goal. He twisted his way through the entire Merrill team on the first play after the kickoff, at the start of the second half. Pat Bowyer paved the way for this spectacular jaunt by blocking two Merrill men who were gaining on Champeau near the 20-yard line.

Easy victories were scored over Nekoosa and Marshfield. After the regulars had run up a commanding lead in the first half of the Nekoosa game, Coach Leksell used almost the entire second team in the last half. The absence of Julius Petta during this game hindered the aerial attack but on defense Floyd Blomdahl, his understudy, did a grand job. Cebula scored twice against Marshfield to pace the Hodags to a well-earned victory.

The big upset of the season was the Hodags' stunning defeat at the hands of the Red Raiders of Wisconsin Rapids. Absence of the fullback, "Vic" Cebula, and guard, Pat Bowyer, seemed to cause a feeling of uncertainty among the players, and they just couldn't "pull themselves together" to even score, so when the gun barked, ending the game, the Hodags were on the short end of a 26-0 score. L. Kaja seemed to be the whole Rapids team as he twisted, spun, and smashed his way through the line for a total of 19 points. After a defeat by the mighty men of Wausau, the speedy Hodags barely nosed out Stevens Point by a score of 12-6.

The game with Antigo ended in a 13-13 tie. Played on a rainsoaked and muddy field, this was one of the hardest fought battles for the Hodags. Perrault, the regular quarterback, was out of the game most of the time.

The Hodags were ably instructed by Mr. Leksell, the coach, and Mr. Oldfield, this year's assistant coach.

After the close of the official season the football players, along with Mr. Leksell, Mr. Oldfield, Mr. Weinlick, and Mr. Kruschke were guests at three banquets given in their honor by various clubs of the community.

On Armistice Day they were guests of The American Legion at the Memorial Building. The boys enjoyed their good meal of roast beef. The Rotary Club banquet came next. This was held at the Oneida Hotel and the boys ate their fill of turkey and all its trimmings. At the Athletic Association banquet, Booster Club girls served the boys a big "feed" in the sewing room which was appropriately decorated for the occasion. After doing justice to a ham dinner, the following boys received awards for the year: A. Beltz, F. Blomdahl, P. Bowyer, G. Carroll, G. Cebula, J. Champeau, A. Dunham, T. Hansen, K. Herrick, V. Huybers, E. Jaroski, E. Kennedy, E. Kuczmarski, K. Ladusire, G. Levknecht, R. Lewis, R. Maine, J. Mlady, R. Moore, A. O'Melia, D. Perrault, J. Petta, C. Phillips, H. Schoepke and D. McKenzie, the student manager. This event under the direction of Miss Young was a success, probably because of Miss Young's theory, "feed them well and don't make them give long speeches." Another highlight of the banquet was the showing of movies. This year a movie of the Wisconsin-Purdue football game was shown. The fellows especially liked this, for George Makris, a product of Rhinelander's gridiron, plays for Wisconsin.

The players were all glad for the rest at the end of the season, but with few exceptions, they would have liked to play just a few of the games over.

regional tournament game

By beating Wausau in the final game of their regular season, the Hodags became co-title holders with Wausau and Antigo. This was the sixth title in Leksell's seven years of coaching Rhinelander basketball teams.

The boys in green and white started the season with a non-conference win over Eagle River. The first conference game was discouraging to the fellows, for they lost to Stevens Point by the close score of 34-32. For a number of weeks after this unexpected loss, the Hodags were successful against foes from Ironwood, Nekoosa, Wausau, Tomahawk, and Merrill. This string of victories was interrupted by a defeat at the hands of Marshfield. When the game was over, the Hodag followers were amazed to see the score 36-23, with their favorites on the short end.

At Rhinelander the Leksellmen beat Antigo but the next week when they went to Antigo, the score was about reversed with the Ants receiving the victory.

In the last three games the Hodags went on a rampage, beating Wisconsin Rapids, Ironwood, and Wausau, the latter game clinching for them a share of first place in the conference standings.

At the district tournament, which was held in Rhinelander, the Hodags beat Crandon and Antigo, but lost in their final game to a scrappy team from Laona by a margin of just one field goal, 24-22.

Winning a share of the title wasn't the only honor received by the boys. George Cebula, who was adept at faking his guard out of position, was second high scorer in the conference along with being named to the center position for the second consecutive year. Joe Champeau, who was a forward on last year's all-conference team, was named as a guard this year. He was one of the best guards in the conference and the spark of the Hodag quintet. Bob Moore, a forward on our team, was named to the all-conference second team.

The season closed with a banquet, given by the Athletic Association, to which all members of the "A" and "B" teams were invited as well as the men faculty members.

GIRLS' ATHLETIC CLUB

There were screams and laughs, bumps and bangs, black and blue marks, and strained muscles, but that didn't stop the girls of the Athletic Club. Their organization gave them pleasure and much-needed exercise. Throughout the year they accomplished much: (1) Breaking tradition, they revised their constitution to enable sophomores and juniors to get their letters as well as seniors, (2) Their float won first prize in the Homecoming Parade making them winners for two successive years, and (3) To tie up their basketball tournament, the champion team had the privilege of playing a team of teachers. Spectators were admitted for a nominal fee. The funds were used for their annual Mother and Daughter Banquet which was a big success.

PUBLICATIONS

The REPORTER office is one of the busiest club rooms in our school. Its very atmosphere is one of hard work and it should be; it is there that staff members do the difficult task of editing a paper to suit both faculty and students. The Reporter Staff leads the shaping and editing of the paper while the JOURNALISM reporters furnish the material for them to work with. For any member to set foot inside the door means work, for no sooner is this done than that familiar statement, "You're just the one I wanted to see," is quickly "fired" at him by Miss Schroth, and before any protest can be uttered, he finds himself working and liking it. In this spirit is carried on the work of our school paper.

The task of editing and distributing our school annual, the HODAG, is given to the Hodag Staff. It is a lot of good hard work; but in spite of all their groans, the members really don't mind, for in the end they have something to show for their labor. Anybody walking past the door of the Senior English room might hear exclamations such as these issuing forth, "I've pasted on so many black squares that I see them in my dreams!" or "Does it really pay to be original? I wonder!" "Patience has its virtues," or "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again" is the adopted motto of the members, for the chief aim of the whole staff is to try to the best of their ability to edit an annual their classmates and teachers will be proud to own.

FORENSICS

FORENSIC CLUB—"All those interested in speech report to room 20." This announcement means that the speech people are about to start work. Those who like to argue will sign up for Debate, while the dramatically inclined student will try Declam. Oratory will attract our future statesmen and Extemp. Reading will be pursued by future readers of radio scripts, while last, but not least, those interested in current events will go out for Extemp. Speaking.

The members of these five groups, when put in one room, comprise the FORENSIC CLUB. Its meetings are devoted to speech work, planned or otherwise. This club's part in the school's entertainment is a series of speech contests at which all these speakers compete to determine who can "out talk the others."

DEBATE—"All of you have come because you are interested in debate. Perhaps you don't know what it is all about, but you will find out." So says Mr. Froling to the new debaters.

This started a good season judging by the number out for debate. Twenty students took the plunge and found themselves in room 20 for the rest of the season. "Pop," to his debaters, did not have eliminations this year but maintained all who desired to stay. The first big event of the year was the tournament at the Rapids at which the squad won six out of six debates. This was followed by several debates with other schools.

The squad had their fun, too, for two large supper meetings were held with initiation for the sophomores. Two more tournaments climaxed the season and out of twelve debates Rhinelander won nine. Thus those who didn't know what debate was found out soon enough and helped carry the squad through a most successful season.

DRAMATICS

For greater appreciation of dramatics and the production of plays, the DRAMATIC CLUB, under the direction of Miss Young, studied theatrical work including acting, prompting, stage effects, and scenery. The climax of the club's events was the presentation of their three one-act plays in the spring.

Open only to juniors and seniors the entire production of these plays was enacted and sponsored by the Dramatic Club. Composed of an all-boys' play, an all-girls' play, and a mixed cast play, the players for these performances were chosen by tryouts. This year the three plays were all farces portraying social life, army life, and even a wedding. In the all-girls' selection a tidbit of gossip about a cut over a young woman's eye circulated until it almost led to her husband's lynching. This play proved the apt moral of its title, "Don't Tell A Soul." In "Girl Shy," the all-boys' play, the comrades of a blushing, girl-shy private played a joke on him with almost disastrous results. A southern, superstitious "jinx" jinxed the whole wedding in the "Jinx From Alabama" by marrying the bridegroom herself. When members of the Dramatic Club had seen the productions, the size of the audience, and the proceeds, they were well pleased with the activities of their club for 1942.

Two "Charley's Aunts," Sam Raleigh and Jug Brown, were dressed for emergency chaperoning in the junior class play, GOOD NIGHT, LADIES. Helen and Sam Raleigh had inherited an old house which was mortgaged. In order to pay off the mortgage, they turned it into a boarding school with their two old-maid aunts as chaperons. But calamities befell so that the aunts couldn't arrive at the appointed time; so, to save the boarding school from being "usurped" by Dean Ellegbey, Sam, and his pal, Jug Brown, impersonated the aunts with almost disastrous but side-splitting results. However, the situation was solved by their friend, a professor at Grayson College, just at the point when the Dean discovered the "aunts'" identity.

LEASE ON LIBERTY, the senior class play, revolved around "Grammy," the rich, militant grandmother who was seventy-eight and possessed the "Spirit of '76." When she disgustingly saw how her American family views were being dominated by fifth columnists, she made her family see these motives in their true light through her attractive companion, Fay Latimer, and a Russian named Mischa, who had found Utopia in America. Of course, Grammy's grandson fell in love with Fay Latimer to add a touch of romance and to re-establish himself in Grammy's favor.

SCIENCE

NATURE CLUB—"How can kangaroos run with such disproportionate legs?" is a probable question of a curious pupil. Never does the same thing happen twice in this club. Flies, spiders, birds, and other forms of life are studied. Most of the specimens are dead. Many a member gets chills just imagining that hairy spider crawling up his back. Nevertheless, it is a brave group, forever asking questions, and Nature always has an answer.

SCIENCE CLUB—"I'm sure that water is H_2O , but what are the other formulas?" ponders a scientific youth. Science has advanced this world beyond what it was thought possible, and it has been young people like these who rose to prove astounding facts. Who knows? Maybe one of our club will discover an unknown element, or at least be an assistant to a scientist. Experiments, quizzes, study, and fun are incorporated into this club's activity at each interesting meeting.

CAMERA CLUB—Snap! "Don't move!" warns the photographer. Never has a picture failed to either flatter, or to make a person feel disappointed. "To please" is a photographer's motto. Members of this club study the camera thoroughly. If one were to enter into this room when the club was working, he would soon wonder how people ever got so involved. The thrilling part of this field is the developing of pictures, especially the mixing of solutions. Many interesting pictures have been taken.

A Senior Travelogue

Life is but a highway
With many a twist and turn,
And education, the beacon
For those who strive to learn.
Graduation is the crossroads
The Senior class must part;
Commencement is that new trail
On which we all must start.

There are detours to confuse us,
There are rivers to be crossed,
But with experienced guides before us
No one needs be strayed or lost.
We'll surge steadily forward
With God's help and a will to do—
Nothing will ever stop us,
We, the Seniors of '42.
